eral merchandise, $5,698,104. Total sales of stocks were 76,730 shares, including the following: American Sugar, 8,900; Burlington, 1,700; Chicago Gas, 33,500; Delaware Hudson, 2,100; Distilling, 1,600; New Jersey Central, 1,300; St. Paul, 31,100;

Western Union, 2,000. During the two hours of business Sat-arday speculation on the New York Stock Exchange was irregular and unsettled, with Chicago Gas most prominent in the trading. There was heavy liquidation in his stock, and under brisk selling a de cline of 1½, to 75%, was effected. Then came a raily to 76¼, followed by a reaction to 75½, and a final raily to 76%, making the loss on the day only ¼. Sugar, although next in point of activity, was comparatively neglected, fluctuating between 90% and 90, and closing at the lower figure with a net loss of ½. The coal figure, with a net loss of 4. The coal shares showed the greatest strength of e entire list. Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, after an opening decline of 2%, to 159, sold up to 163%, closing at 162%, a gain on the day of 1%. Delaware & Hudson rose 1%, to 132, the last being the best price touched. New Jersey Central, after an early reaction of 1% advanced 2 an early reaction of 14, advanced 2, to 1834, with a final reaction of 12, making 14 improvement from Friday. National Starch seconds sold at 20, against 35, the last pre-vious sale. The movement in the rest of stocks traded in was very narrow, and the changes at the close, compared with the final quotations of yesterday, are merely fractional. The market closed For the week it has been a dull market, the aggregate of the sales being only 201,-601 shares, and, as a result of the trading, orices are in the main higher than at the close of last week. Chicago Gas opened on Monday with a gain of 3, at 733, and on heavy trading soid up to 783, on Friday, a net gain of 54. Realizing sales subsequently brought the shares down to 753, with a later recovery to 76%, making a gain of 3%. Sugar also fluctuated widely, and after a reaction of % to 85% on Monday, advanced to 91 on Friday and closed Saturday at 90, gaining 3 per cent. on the week.

Among the coal shares New Jersey Central was the most prominent, and on good buying were advanced from 86, the final sale of last week, to 93% yesterday, a rise of 7%, with a subsequent reaction of 1/2. Delaware & Hndson was forced up from 126 to 132, closing at the highest of the week. Lack-awanna was advanced from 158% the low awanna was advanced from 158%, the low figure of Monday, to 161½ on Wednesday, and Saturday dropped to 159, with a recovery to 163¼ and a final reaction to 162½, making a clear gain of 4 per cent. Consolidated Gas was sold up from 127 to 131¼ and closed at the best. The other more important changes are: Advances—Northwest and closed at the best. LOCAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

Trade Brisk as Could Be Expected Under Weather Conditions. To say that trade in the week ending Jan. 2 was up to expectations would be untrue, but to say after looking back over the week that trade was good, considering the weather, would be no exaggeration. The fact is that seldom does Indiana experience such weather as was that of the last four days of the week. In prices changes were few. Early in the week dry goods were marked down and again on Thursday and it is questioned if the bottom is yet reached. On the other hand groceries are firm and moving freely. Stocks of fruits and vegetables are being reduced and this cold weather they are not replenished, consequently there are indications that one must pay more for Irish potatoes and apples, in fact, all vegetables and fruits in the near future than for some time past. The provision market is more actime past. The provision market is more active, prices easy, but not lower. Poultry and eggs are firm at quotations which for poultry are higher than a week ago.

It was an active week in the local grain market. All receipts were readily taken. Through the week no material changes in prices was shown, track bid Saturday ruling as follows:

MOTHER KATHARINE DREXEL. Her Final Vows Involve Great Worldly Sacrifice.

Philadelphia Record. Before the celebration of the low mass Archbishop Ryan blessed the ring to be worn by Mether Katharine as a mark of her lifelong devotion to the noble but arluous and exacting work in the service of Christ, to which she was about to voluntarily pledge herself. During the mass Mother Katharine received from the mother assistant the act of final profession, after which she advanced to the communion rail and solemnly said: "In the name of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, and under the protection of His immaculate mother, Mary, ever virgin, I, Katharine Drexel, called in religion Sister Mary Katharine, do vow and promise to God, until death, poverty, chastity and obedience, and to be the mother and servant of the Indian and negro races, according to the rule and constitution of the Sister of the Blessed Sacrament for Indians and Colored People; nor shall I undertake any work which may lead to the neglect or abandonment of the Indian and colored races, under the authority and in the presence of you, my very reverend father in God, Most Rev. P. J. Ryan, Archbishop of the Diocese of Philadelphia and of the Sisters of the Blessed Sacrament for Indians and Colored People."

Archbishop Byan then administered below Archbishop Ryan then administered holy communion to the self-sacrificing young woman, saying: "May the body of our Lord Jesus Christ preserve thy soul into life everlasting." Shortly after the Arch-bishop put a plain silver ring on the third finger of her right hand, and pronounced an impressive benediction.

The ceremony which wedded Mother Katharine Drexel to the sisterhood which she herself founded was then virtually concluded by her response, which was: "I am espoused to Him whom the angels serve and at whose beauty the sun and moon stand in wonder."

A second mass was celebrated later on at which the black veil and the crucifix were conferred upon four Sisters, who had passed through the necessary novitiate and whose vows were the same as those made whose vows were the same as those made by Mother Katharine Drexel. They were Sister Mary Anne. Miss Annie McFadden, of Williamsport: Sister Mary Martha, Miss Bridget Donnelly, of Philadelphia: Sister Mary Peter Claver, Miss Johanna Higgins, of Philadelphia, and Sister Mary Angela, Miss Annie Campbell, of Torresdale, St. Elizabeth's Convent, which was erect ed through the munificence of Mother Katharine Drexel, is devoted to the evan-gelization of the Indians and colored people of the United States. The buildings are imposing and finely situated.

Some idea of the great worldly sacrifice made by Mother Katharine Drexel in taking the final vow may be gleaned from this brief extract from the sermon of Rev. John Scully, S. J., after the ceremony:
"The offering of gold typifies your vow of poverty, by which you give up not only all you have, but also the possibility of your ever owning anything, or of making use of it as if you were the owner." The Doctor and the Monte Man.

The card sharp had swallowed a fish bone and was about choking to death when the physician reached him. In a very short time the physician had the bone out and the sharp was all right again. "How much do I owe you?" he asked. gratefully.
"Ten dollars," replied the physician, without the sign of a blush.
"Great Scot, man," exclaimed the sharp, 'you werent working a minute. That's an enermous price to charge."

"My dear sir," responded the physician, with professional dignity, "that's not the way to look at it. You must consider the years of practice necessary to acquire my skill." skill."

The sharp kicked but it did no good, and he had to pay the bill.

Several weeks later the sharp, looking like a heavy swell, was on a train out of the city, and the doctor was in the same car, but he did not recognize his former patient. The sharp was working several of his little tricks with the boards, and he finally roped in the doctor. He manipulated him carefully for some time, and at last landed him for $25.

"Here, here," shouted the doctor, when he saw his roll disappear, "you haven't given me any show at all. You got that money of me by a simple twist of the wrist."

"My dear sir," responded the sharp, wrist."

"My dear sir," responded the sharp, soothingly, "that's no way to look at it. You should consider the years of practice necessary to acquire my skill."

Something at this moment reminded the doctor, and he looked the sharp over curiously. Then he smiled faintly and back $15 of that and call it square?"

COLD WEATHER, RECEIPTS AND ES-TIMATES FAVORED THE BULLS.

Chlengo Grain Market Showed Advances for All Cereals and Provisions Came in for Grins.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12 .- Cold weather, light receipts and Bradstreet's statement concerning the smallness of the visible supply set wheat shorts to covering to-day, and May closed %c higher. May corn closed %c higher. May oats 4c higher, and provisions at slight advances.

The wheat market opened rather sluggish and with very little change from the closing price of the day before, but very soon a number of buyers started up and the price rose buoyantly and readily from 584@ 58% at the opening to 58%@58% in the course of the next forty minutes. The statement by Bradstreet confirming to some extent the views expressed on Thursday by the Cincinnati Price Current with reference to the smallness of the visible supply this 'year compared with that of the year before, was the principal cause of the firmness. The other market influences were of a mixed character. Foreign markets were quoted about steady, and the export clearances for the last twenty-four hours from the Atlantic ports and New Orleans were the lightest recorded for a very long time-only 5,000 bushels of wheat, and not enough flour to bring the total up to 100,000 bushels. Receipts, however, were light and the small exports were ascribed to accidental circumstances. Bradstreet gave the week's clearances from both coasts at 2,587,-000 bushels in what and flour. Primary market receipts amounted to 245,000 bushels against 680,000 bushels on the corresponding week of the year before. The severely cold weather, which in Missouri and Kansas, where the wheat plants have no snow protection, was accompanied by high winds, helped in the demoralization of the shorts which took place. The market ruled strong all day, and May closed at 58% 658% c bid.

Corn opened firm and continued so. The strength of wheat helped it, but its improved tone came in some degree also from the better condition of the grain, and the consequent greater confidence inspired thereby among those who wish to store it. The cut in rail rates to the East, it is expected, will wake up the shipping movement and remove the dead load of the daily receipts from the shoulders of the local crowd. May opened from 47% to 48c, and gradually worked up to 48% c, and closed at 48% 48% c. Liverpool was quoted firm and 3d higher.

Not very much attention was paid to the oats market, yet a fair business was transacted for a Saturday. There were some buying orders on hand, and that, together with the influence of the neighboring markets caused a firmer feeling. May sold from 3lc to 31% c, and closed at 31% 431% c.

Provisions were barely steady at a slight advance at the opening, but became firmer ing week of the year before. The severely Provisions were barely steady at a slight advance at the opening, but became firmer later, and closed at fractionally better prices than on the day before. Hog receipts were 19,000, and 35,000 are estimated for Monday. A better demand was reported to exist for cash property, and the packers were evidently disinclined to sell ahead at going evidently disinclined to sell ahead at going

SOME FUNNY AND SOME WISE SAY-INGS OF THE LITTLE ONES.

A Child That Says Grace and Another That Wanted Some of the "Blessing" on His Dinner Plate.

New York Herald. A Harlem family has two young hopefuls aged respectively six and four years. Charlie, the elder, has been taught to aska blessing on the morning meal. The other morning he was sitting with his hands folded, downcast eyes and angelic expression on his face and had proceeded half way through the blessing which had been composed for him:

"Gende Jesus, meek and mild, Make us each thy living child," when little Jimmie created some disturbance at the other end of the table. Without unclasping his hands. Charlie looked up with a withering glance at Jimmie and in an angry tone said:

"Dol durn 'oo, 'tan't 'oo tepp 'till till I det froo?" Then dropping his eyes he sweetly murmured the rest of his petition. A west side household numbers as one of its most important members a bright little boy of four. The grandparents form part of the family, and little Frankie sits next his grandfather at table. A few mornings ago the breakfast was delayed and Frankie had got very hungry. Thinking to expedite matters, he quietly slipped a blessing. When he had finished, grandpa asked sternly why Frankie had done thus, and

Recently, I witnessed an instance that was a little unusual in the sang froid displayed by the child's victim. I was crossing Indiana in a Baltimore & Ohio sleeper with a friend of Scotch-Irish descent, in whose features the Milesian traits are prominent, especially the mouth, whose size is revealed to the utmost by a smooth-shaven face. To while away the time we got up a game of whist, inviting, for partners, two commercial trav-

As the game prog-ressed, we noticed that the child was kneeling on the car seat, gazing steadily at my friend, never taking her eyes from his face or a moment. When the rubber was finished, the drummers stepped across to their section, and my friend and I rose to stretch our legs. The action seemed to break the spell upon the child, and she cried shrilly: "Oh, mamma! See what a big mouth that

The young mother blushed a furious red, and canught hold of the child, saying:
"Hush! Hush!"
"But he has, mamma!" persisted the child, climbing to her knees, and fixing her gaze on my friends's capacious mouth, which was just beginning to expand into an all-embracing smile. "Oh, look, mamma. It's getting bigger all the time!" At this the whole car became uproarious and the mother pulled the child down, with a look of exquisite torture on her face.

"Madam," said my friend, leaning forward, "don't reprove the child. She is quite right. My mouth is large, and I am not at all annoyed by it. On returning from the next eating station we found the section vacant and learned from the porter that the mother had moved her embarrassing infant into the other

The short man got in the car at the corner of Broadway and Reade streets and took the only vacant seat, next to the tall man with chin whiskers. In a few minutes he began a conversation with the tall man man nodded assent or disagreement as the occasion demanded. Finally the short man nudged the tall man, and, pointing to a young man in the further corner of the car who wore an unusually high collar and con-spicuous tie, he coarsely whispered: "Look at that young fellow's get up. Isn't it strange that men should make such guys of themselves?"

"Very," answered the tall man, dryly.
"If I were his father I wouldn't be seen on the street with him." "Probably not," said the tall man as he rose, and, with a motion of the hand to the young man, he said, 'Come on, son,' and the two left the car. The short man looked at the floor, and the other passengers tittered; and at the corner the short man got out and waited for the next car.

(Harold accompanied his mother on an afternoon call upon the elderly lady who has just moved in next door.) Mrs. Newcomer—And this is little Harold? Well, my little man, I hope that we shall be good friends. Harold (imperatively)-I want to see 'oo ttle chickens! Mrs. Newcomer-Why, I haven't any little chickens.
Harold-Where's 'oo fezzers?

Mrs. Newcomer-Why, what does the child mean? I haven't any feathers. Haroid-Den papa storied, 'cause he said was a ole hen dat had moved in his Amy has very beautiful hair, which curls in lovely fashion. Her next door playmate, Ethel, has straight hair, and is envious of Amy's curls. The other morning Ethel had been very naughty and her mother (who was born in Boston), was obliged to say, "Ethel, go directly into the other room. I am going to punish you right straight off."
Ethel whimpered—Mamma, can't you punish me the curly way?
"What do you mean?"

"I heard Amy's papa tell her this morning that he was going to give her a whipping that would make her hair curl, and if—if it's just the same to you, I'd rather have that kind." Force of habit will sometimes lead an absent-minded man into ludicrous actions of which he never becomes conscious. A West Seventy-ninth street man recently afforded an amusing instance of this, Mr. s. is the senior of several partners in a head of the firm and dictates all the correspondence of the house, his favorite posispondence of the house, his favorite posi-tion being a standing one, facing the stenographer. Recently for several Sun-days Mr. S. has invited the other members of the firm to dinner at his home. Being a deacon in the church, Mr. S. always asks a somewhat lengthy blessing, standing while the others are seated. After the first dinner one of the junior partners said to ished the blessing? He mumbled something that I couldn't catch." "Nor I," answered the other Next Sunday the same thing was repeated, and the curiosity of the younger men having been aroused, it was arranged that the next time one of them should get as close as possible to Mr. S., and be on the alert for the muttered appendix to the This was carried out and the astonished partner caught in a hurrled mumble the surprising ending, "Yours, very truly, E. THE SCOTS GREYS. A Regiment with a Fame That Is World Wide and Merited.

during two centuries; its striking and historic name; its grand and imposing uniform—have made the Royal Scots Greys, as an individual corps, there is no gain-saying, the most widely known and familiar of all the regiments of the British saying, the most widely known and familiar of all the regiments of the British army.

Since the regiment was raised in the reign of the second Charles the Second Dragoons have borne themselves well in many a famous field, but want of space forbids us to note the exploits until "earth shaking" Waterloo came on the glory roll of the gallant Greys, Here, with the English "Royals" and Irish "Inniskillings," they formed the famous "Union Brigade," which made the neverto-be-forgotten charge immortalized in the well-known picture of the "Fight for the Standard." That widely-known picture shows a man of the Greys, Sergeant Ewart, capturing the eagle of a very famous French corps, the "Forty-fifth of the Line." Sergeant Ewart himself has told the story in a letter to his father. He relates: "It was the first charge, about II o'clock, I took the eagle from the enemy. He and I had a hard contest for it. He thrust for my groin, I parried it off and cut him through the head, after which I was attacked by one of their Lancers, who threw his lance at me, but missed the mark by my throwing it off by my sword at my right side; then I cut him from the chin upward, which went through his teeth. Next I was attacked by a foot soldier, who, after firing at me, charged me with his bayonet;

Later on this same day of Waterloo oc-Butler has made one of her most spirited pictures. The Ninety-second Gordon High-landers, reduced to 200 men, were charging with the bayonet a French column, 2,000 with the bayonet a French column, 2,000 strong, when the Greys rode up alongside them, and with the Highlanders clinging to their stirrup leathers, with one general shout of "Scotland forever!" in one commingled body of horse and foot, the two regiments tumbled the huge column of Frenchmen to pieces. In our own times the Greys have In our own times the Greys have proved their mettle by their conduct at Balaklava. On that occasion—again with their old warshout of "Scotland forever!"—they charged, at the head of Scarlett's Heavy Brigade, and rode through a dense column of 3,000 cavalry. The Greys' very latest tour of war service was in 1884-5, when, with Lord Wolseley's Camel Corps, they made the desert march and fought at Abu Klea.

PARSLEY AFTER ONIONS. The Herb Will Remove the Bad Odor of This Vegetable. At this season of the year, when the digestive system is apt to become overloaded with rich, greasy or sweet foods, plenty of onions should be eaten as a counterbalance. They are good for the stomach, the complexion and the nerves when eaten either boiled or raw, but, of course, the unpleasant odor left on the breath after indulgence in them is a barrier to their use to many people who would otherwise be able to take advantage of the good there is in them. To overcome all this and give everyone a chance an old remedy is suggested—parsley. To entirely destroy the bad odor of onions eat a small sprig of this pretty green herb either with your meal or immediately after it. There will be nothing in the breath or about the person at all suggestive of the odoriferous bulb five minutes after the parsley is eaten. Any one can have parsley, for, if he does not have access to that convenience known as a "soup bunch," it may be readily grown any warm, sunny window. Soak the seeds about twenty-four hours before planting in water that has the chill removed, and after planting water plentifully. The little green heads will peep up over the earth in about fifteen days, and when the plants are well grown your window has a pretty ornament in it. At this season of the year, when the di-

Changed Their Minds.

The patient had been sick a long time and the doctor had done his best, but in vain, and the end was approaching.

"If you have anything to say before going," said the doctor, "it will be best for you to say it now."

"Well, doctor," replied the patient cheerfully, "I have only the kindlest feelings for you, for I'm sure you wouldn't lose so good a customer as I've been if you could be the patient cheer and the patient cheerfully."

Scottish American. "Second to none" is the proud motto of the gallant and famous regiment—the Sec-ond Gragoon Guards, or "Royal Sects Greys." It is a happily chosen motto, for the fame of the regiment is world wide. Its brilliant achievements on the field of battle
